BROWNING

+ Blackfeet Heritage Center & Art Gallery | 333 Central Ave W | 406 338 5661 | website

The Blackfeet Heritage Center & Art Gallery, owned and operated by the Blackfeet Nation's Siyeh Corporation, exhibits and sells a full range of art media, including paintings, sculpture, beadwork, pottery, drums and literature. The gallery features the work of more than 500 artists from 16 separate North American tribes. The center also features the smallest, and most complete skeleton of a juvenile tyrannosaur found in North America. The dinosaur was about three years of age when it died, perhaps drowning in an ancient river 73 million years ago. The tyrannosaur was very closely related to Tyrannosaurus rex. Its blade-shaped, serrated teeth indicate that it was a flesh-eater rather than a bone crusher like adult tyrannosaurs. OPEN SUN-SAT 9am-6pm June through October.

WHITEHALL

+ JEFFERSON VALLEY MUSEUM | 303 SOUTH DIVISION | 406 287 7813

visitmt.com/listings/general/museum/jefferson-valley-museum

To preserve the past for use in the future is the mission of the Jefferson Valley Museum as it depicts the history and heritage of the Jefferson Valley. This area was once home to Native American tribes, fur trappers, miners and homesteaders who raised horses, cattle and produce for the area's mining camps. By the turn of the century, the Northern Pacific Railroad arrived, followed by the Milwaukee Railroad, and life in the valley changed forever. All this can be rediscovered in the restored 1914 barn located three blocks south from the middle of downtown Whitehall. Genealogy cards are kept for those working on family history. Historic pictures and research material also available. Our museum is free to visitors. Donations are welcomed and appreciated.

Hours Tuesday – Sunday 12:00 PM – 4:00 PM Memorial Day Week-end - September 15
